In Japanese there are ways to say: This is what and what thereThis - Kore (これ). It refers to things that are close to the dynamics. It's pain (それ). It refers to things that are close to the person you talk to. It's there - there's (あれ). Relates to things that are far away from you and the speaker. Example suggestion: Kore wa hon des (これはほん です) This book (when the book is close to you, speaker) Sore wa hon des (それはほん です) This book (when the book is close to the person with whom you talk) There is wa hon de (あれはほん です) That there is a book (when the book is far away from you and the other person) Let's say you want to be more specific. Imagine that you are in a bookstore and there are many books. How do you feel about a particular book? You may be pointing to a specific book or holding a specific book. Then in this case you would use: kono hon (このほん) This book (particularly) Sono Hong (そのほん) This book (particularly) Ano Hong (あのほん) This book there (in particular) Sample suggestions: Kono Hong wa taka Des (このほんはたかいです) This book is expensive (when the book is near you) Sono hon wa takai des (そのほんはたかいです) This book is expensive (when the book is close to another person) ano hon wa takai des (あのほんはたかいです) This book there is expensive (when The book is far from the speaker and the other person) Kore, pain and some of the first pronouns you learn as an aspiring Japanese student and at first, they seem pretty simple. But, the difference between bark, pain and often a point of confusion, especially when you throw in a cono, son and ano in the mix. Read on to get your head around the difference between Kore, Sore and Eat. Grammar Points Kore, Pain and are the equivalent of this and that in English. How you use them depends on how close or far it is in what you mean. This is an important concept in understanding the difference between bark, pain and is. The bark is used for things next to the speaker. For example, Kore wa Hon Desu. これは本です。 It's a book. Kore wa Ikura desuka? これはいくらですか? How much does it cost? Pain is used for things next to the listener. For example, Sore wa hon desu. それは本です。 It's a book. The pain of the wa nan desuka? それはなんですか? What's this (for you)? Used for things that are far from the speaker and the listener. For example, are wa hon desuka? あれは本ですか? Wa Nan desuka? あれはなんですか? What is it (there)? Kono, Sono and Ano Things start to get a little more complicated when you add in kono, sono and ao that mean the same as bark, pain and is. So how do you know whether to use Kore or Kono? The main difference is that kono, sono and ao are adjectives and should be accompanied by nouns. By comparison, remember that bark, pain and pronouns, meaning they can be used instead of a noun, and therefore can stand alone. Kono Hong wa Watashi no desu. この本は私のです。 This book is mine. Kono shugakuse. この小学生。 This elementary school Sono Hong wa Ikura desuka? その本はいくらですか? How much does this book cost? Sono Hon ga daisuki diatsu. その本が大好きです。 I like this book. Ano hon no shomei wa nan desuka? あの本? 書名はなんですか? What is the title of this book (there)? Ano Hito wa Natsuki-san desuka? あ? はなつきさんですか this man (there) Natsuki-san? It may take some getting used to, but it will be easier to make a difference the more you study. As you get more advanced in your Japanese, you will get better feel for when to use certain words and you will know instinctively when to use kore/sore/are and when to use kono/sono/ano. For maps of objects placed in front of the talking person, they will need to use 'Kore or Kono' (これor こ) maps of objects placed next to their partner, they will need to use 'Sore or Sono' (それorそ) and cards not close to any of the people they will need to use 'Are or Ano' (あれorあ). That is Kore wa Ikura desu ka? これはいくらですか。 The pain of wa Ikura des ka? それはいくらですか。 To make the activity more complex, place similar objects in similar groups, i.e. two or three different types of cameras in the Kore group of cards. Ss then need to use descriptive words such as ookii おおきい, chiisai ちいさい, aoii あおい, pinku ピク etc. to describe the object in more detail. Ie.
